MONDAY MORNING NOV 1862

The Militia Law

By the favor of Hon S E May Secretary of State we have received a printed copy of "An Act to organize the Militia," passed by the Legislative Assembly of Oregon, session of 1862 and approved October 19th The Act is very lengthy too much so for publication in full by us, but we give a careful synopsis of the most important features from which a general understanding can be had of its provisions and requirements as follows

Section 1st makes it the duty of Assessors in each county in the State, annually at the time of assessing property to make out a list of all persons in their respective counties who are liable to do military duty under the laws of the United States and of this State and file the same in the office of the County Clerk to be by him recorded in a book kept for that purpose

Section 2d provides that corrections or irregularities may be corrected in the same manner as assessment rolls are corrected, and that the clerk of each county shall transmit a copy of said list to the Adjutant General within twenty days after its correction and approval

Section 3d levies a tax of two dollars upon each and every person liable to do military duty, to be collected annually and paid over to the State Treasurer, who shall keep the same in a separate fund, to be called the Military Fund

Section 4th fixes penalties and liabilities upon assessors and clerks for failure or refusal to perform any of the duties required of them by this Act all fines so collected to be paid into the Military Fund of the State

Sections 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10 11, 12 and 13, are as follows

FIRE —By letter from Albany, we learn that the Boston Mills and Carding Machine located on the Calapooia, thirteen miles from that place, were entirely destroyed by fire on the night of the 25th ult It was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary. The mills and carding machine belonged to Messrs Caldwell, Crawford & Finley Fifteen hundred pounds of wool were destroyed Most of the farmers in the vicinity had stored their wheat in the mills, and as nothing was saved, of course the loss will be large

TREASURE —Large amounts of treasure still continue to be shipped from this city to San Francisco by every steamer Wells Fargo & Co shipped by Pacific, yesterday, $76 000, other parties $90 000 Who says Oregon is not a gold producing country as well as potatoes, apples and babies, notwithstanding its web foot proclivities"

The receipts in the United States Treasury from customs alone, during the present fiscal year, will aggregate from $80 000,000 to $100 000,000 From direct taxation $200 000 000 or $250 000,000 No wonder United States bonds command a higher premium than any other public securities

A BALTIMORE SECESSIONIST AND HIS CONFEDERATE SCRIP —The Baltimore Clipper tells this story A rebel farmer living near Bear creek, in Baltimore county Maryland was so elated at the late rebel incursion in Maryland that he determined to visit "our deliverers" and for that purpose hooked up his horse and wagon, and started off apace He alighted at a hotel near Frederick, and was drinking a bumper to Jeff when a Confederate officer came in and inquired for the owner of the team Bear creek farmer was delighted and with a face radiant with smiles said 'I am sir and that team is Southern all over sir, horse, wagon and driver sir And what is the price interrupted the son of Mars pulling out a roll of Confederate scrip "Oh," said the farmer, I would not like to sell now 'cause I can't use your kind of money in Baltimore No sense, says the officer, 'haven't you declared over and over in your letters that the bankers and rich men in Baltimore are on our cause They'll buy sir,' and handing over the price in Confederate scrip, he left the farmer to toddle home afoot with a pocket full of Confederate treasure He arrived in town a few days ago, and stopped several persons with 'Show me the man that buys Confederate scrip' We have not heard at the time of going to press whether the individual so eagerly sought for has turned up

The MORNING OREGONIAN has a larger SUBSCRIPTION LIST than any other Daily published in this City

THE DAILY OREGONIAN may be obtained at the News Room and of Charles Barrett's Fruit Store on Front street.

TEMPERANCE LECTURES.—As previously noticed by us, Mr J F Vinton has been holding forth to crowded houses in this city for the last several evenings upon the subject of temperance, and notwithstanding the fact that everybody had settled down in the firm conviction that no new thing could be advanced upon this honorable beneficial, moral social and religious requirement of life still Mr Vinton certainly succeeds in presenting the subject in such an agreeable and entertaining shape as to gain the attention of every one who can possibly find room inside the large building of the M E Church This building was densely crowded last night and those who enjoyed the privilege of hearing all that was said, seemed to relish the offering with more than ordinary pleasure As Mr Vinton and the last of the series of these lectures, will be given to night at the same time and place We deem it unnecessary to urge our people to go, as we doubt not the house will be again filled to overflowing

BENEFIT OF MISS VIRGINIA LAWRENCE.—We are requested to announce that Miss Virginia Lawrence, the accomplished and favorite vocalist, will take a benefit at the Willamette Theatre on next Wednesday evening, on which occasion she will appear in her favorite character of "Pocahontas," in the musical burlesque of "Pocahontas" also will favor the audience with several new and beautiful songs and ballads. She will be kindly assisted by Mr Denison's Opera Troupe and an excellent programme will be gotten up for the occasion

THANKS.—S A McCormick, of the Frank Book Store, has our unbounded thanks for a bountiful supply of late periodicals magazines, pictorials, &c

FOR THE BENEFIT OF POOR IMMIGRANTS.—We understand that a Concert will be given on Wednesday night, at the M E Church for the benefit of the poor and destitute immigrants, who are now in our city from the Plains. The Concert is to be given by Mr. Scriber's Brass and String Band, assisted by other generous and humane citizens We hope the effort may prove successful as the object is certainly very worthy and commendable.

SAILED.—The steamship Pacific sailed for San Francisco, via Victoria, yesterday evening at 4 o'clock. A large number of passengers were on board, and a considerable quantity of freight, we were, however, unable to ascertain the exact number and amount

Our thanks are due to Mr Putnam of Freeman & Co's Express, for friendly favors

The National Tax

The following circular issued to the Tax Collectors by the Commissioners of Internal Revenue at Washington, will be found interesting to the public at large:

1. All mechanics, except those who merely do work must be registered as manufacturers and must take out a license as such, if their annual sales amount to $1 000

2. All mechanics and other manufacturers who sell their own manufactures at the place where they are produced, are not required to take out an additional license as traders This includes rectifiers, who must pay both licenses.

3. If manufacturers have an office, depot store room or agency at a place different from the place where the goods are made, or if they sell the manufacture of others in addition to their own, they must pay a traders as well as a manufacturers license Thus, a tobacconist, who both makes cigars and keeps for sale goods in the line which he had purchased, must take out both licenses So must a druggist, who also makes patent articles or medicines, for which he has a private formula

4. Persons keeping bar rooms or saloons, for the sale of liquors, must take out a liquor dealers' license, and the sale of cigars, etc., requires a tobacconist's or retail dealers license and bagatelle tables are reckoned as billiards

5. Commission merchants who are also shipping or commercial brokers are required to take out two licenses.

6 Persons selling flour by the barrel or salt by the sack, or any other article in the original package, are reckoned as wholesale dealers.

7. Stamps must be attached to the papers requiring them at the time of their execution and must be obliterated by the person writing his initials upon them Telegraph dispatches must be stamped and defaced when delivered to be transmitted But railroad and telegraph companies are required to stamp their own receipts over their own lines

8. Arrangements will be made with the Collector of this District to supply stamps to parties desiring to purchase $50 worth or over, at the rates of discount established by the Treasury Department

9. Notes and bills of exchange drawn for a certain sum, with interest, will be stamped according to the principal sum Foreign currency will be estimated at the real par value of exchange, the pound sterling, for instance, at the rates fixed for sovereigns, not at the nominal rate of $4 84, nor at the market rate of exchange, which is now something above the real par

10. On and after Oct 1st, the following instruments must be stamped All agreements checks, sight drafts, promissory notes inland and foreign bills of exchange bills of lading for goods, wares or merchandise exported to foreign ports, packages, etc., per express boats, certificates of stock or profit, of deposit in banks, of damages, and all other certificates, charter parties, brokers memorandums, conveyances mortgages, leases, telegraphic dispatches, custom house entries and manifests, policies of insurance—life, marine and fire, and renewals of same—passage tickets to foreign ports powers of attorney proxies, probate of wills, protests, warehouse receipts and writs or other original process of commencing suits Also patent medicines perfumeries and playing cards

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue thus defines the operations of the Tax Law in certain cases, in reply to queries from the Assessor of the Second District of Pennsylvania:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, OFFICE INTERNAL REVENUE, Washington D C Sept 29 1862

SIR: Your letter of the 27th ult is received. Nothing in the printed slips inclosed by you is official nor was authorized by me except the letter to the Baltimore Assessor

In matter that a tavern keeper must be licensed as a retail liquor dealer in order to sell liquor If he expressly permits to sell cigars to be smoked and his tavern be the best most private and handiest thing to get a smoke in he is considered a retail dealer

Those who sell in wagons from house to house should be licensed as peddlers

Tobacconists are manufacturers

If any person whose occupation is that of a retail dealer is also publicly known as an original packing establishment, he is not thereby required to take out license as a wholesale dealer but if he sells in original packages or by the piece to those who buy to sell again he must take a license as a wholesale dealer

I have decided that persons who are engaged in the production of the articles enumerated in the last part of section seventy five are not considered as manufacturers within the meaning of the Act So it not require to be licensed as manufacturers

The provisions of section seventy six relating manufacturers does not apply to them and they must take out license as wholesale or retail dealers as the case may be

The decision includes bakers millwrights and similar occupations

Where bakers sell their bread from carts a peddlers license should be taken out for the driver of each cart.

But hotel keepers are not subjected to the same rule GEO S BOUTWELL Commissioner

[illegible] Oregon Farmer

Flax Growing in Oregon.

Ed Farmer—Requesting farmers to raise flax if the seed it may be well to give them what I know, little is it is, relating to culture and yield

Most persons who have raised flax in the States, have an erroneous notion that not more than five to ten bushels can be grown upon an acre The reason of this error are seen probably from several causes, among them, these

1st Growing the flax especially for the lint and paying little attention to the amount of ground cultivated or the quantity of seed obtained

2d For lint one to two bushels are sown upon an acre while to produce the most seed, a half bushel is plenty

In all the inquiries I have made, but one or two persons have spoken with precision as to the amount grown upon an acre Mr Watling of Amity Polk County formerly in the business of oil making, states that in a portion of Illinois, where farmers raised flax extensively for the seed it yielded as high as twenty to twenty five bushels to the acre Oregon he considers equal to or better for flax than the old States It undoubtedly is, for this western country seems to be its native soil; it is found growing wild in parts of California, and in Oregon east of the Cascades And in the Willamette Valley it has been found to grow vigorously by nearly every one who has tried it Mr Harris, of Polk County, expresses the opinion, after reaping the product last year from one peck of seed sown, that twenty to thirty bushels may be gathered from an acre Mr Putman, on the South Yamhill, harvested this year a small patch yielding what he guessed, from the sacks containing it, to be three bushels, but calling it two bushels and a half, and accurately measuring the ground, the yield is twelve bushels and nearly a half per acre It was sown late and thick, besides the season he regards as unfavorable A Mr Skaife, of Marion County, had a small patch the season Guessing at the quantity of seed and the land used, he thought the yield would be about seventy five bushels per acre So much for guessing But upon measuring the land and weighing the seed, I found, making no allowance for what he may have wasted, that the amount per acre is only sixteen and four fifths bushels Messrs Jesse Morris and Harris, of Polk, cultivated twelve acres for me this year The average yield per acre is ten bushels About half the piece was thin and much choked with weeds—the land having been subject lately to volunteering—the other half stood uniform and nearly thick enough yielding, judging from appearance, two or three times as much as the other portion We would have threshed it separately but for haste to secure the crop from rain Six acres—the latter part—doubtless averaged fifteen to seventeen bushels The circumstances affecting this crop were mostly unfavorable The land is naturally of first rate quality, but has been in use most of the time for the last fourteen years, the plowing was shallow, part being done with one horse, the season was unfavorable.—My conviction from all this is, that a good crop will give fifteen to twenty bushels of seed to the acre, a first rate crop, twenty-five

When flax is sown thin, the stalk branches at both the bottom and top growing vigorously I have counted four branches on stalks from one seed When sown thick it branches only at the top, the seed pods being small

The land should be well prepared and finely pulverized It would be better plowed in the fall and re plowed in the spring Prairie or new land thus prepared would do well

Whether it would be better if sown by the sign of the moon, on Good Friday, or any other good day, my observation saith nothing At any rate it should be sown in the spring, and not until the soil is in good condition Some seasons doubtless do well as early as the middle of March, and late as the middle of May—the latter half of April being the rule Any kind of rich land will grow flax, if not wet Fern, sorrel, weeds will be in the way, as for any other crop. I saw a tolerable crop, however, grown on a sorrel bed this year

Flax may be mowed cradled, or cut with a reaper It may be threshed with horses or a machine A person having but five or ten acres would find it a saving, in most cases, to tramp with horses, as it threshes very easily, and poor threshers will not throw the seed away with the straw for want of shaking, the seed being smooth slips through the straw readily Threshing with horses, and harvesting, I consider not more than two thirds the labor of wheat or oats

Another advantage in this crop, is that it ripens early, and usually may be harvested and out of the way before other grains are ripe Still another good quality is, that it will lie a long time without injury That raised by Mr Morris this year, lay in the swath for four or five weeks. The only extra care needed that I know of, is in preparing the soil, but some good farmers think that it is profitable to prepare the soil for any crop

Compared with wheat and oats, the value of flax seed from the same amount of land, is favorable, counting it at one dollar per bushel The average yield of wheat from good land during the last three years, would not rise above twenty bushels per acre—The average cash price would be about six ty cents per bushel, giving twelve dollars per acre The average yield of oats may be estimated at thirty bushels per acre and the price thirty cents—varying at different times and places, from twelve cents to one dollar per bushel—giving nine dollars per acre Flax seed at an average of twelve bushels to the acre, at the lowest price proposed would be equal to wheat, saying nothing about the application of the lint to the manufacture of rope paper and cloth Assuming the price of oil to be for several years to come, not less that one dollar and twenty-five cents per gallon and that a gallon of oil is the value of a bushel of seed ten bushels would give twelve dollars and fifty cents per acre, fifty cents above wheat, and three dollars and fifty cents above oats, or equal to fifty bushels of oats to the acre at twenty cents per bushel

In estimating the yield of these oil and their value the points must not be overlooked 1st Wheat upon good land has much greater fluctuation from favorable seasons than flax 2d Both wheat and oats yielding more to the acre and more to the value of market than flax The last when used, is an addition to the value of the seed

A few words about the crop of flax for next spring I know no other person would wish to sow much more quantity than I will and be compelled to wait two or three years for a good developement of flax growing Neither do farmers wish to grow it with a market hence it is best for those to contract definitely for four or five hundred acres Farmers generally put in less largely in favor of those in that state—Now then are there one hundred farmers in Oregon who are willing to test that profession for the sake of growing from one of flax each, to start a branch of business that will save the country from fifty to sixty thousand dollars annually and be well paid for it in the bargain? A few live dreadly made liberal offers One gentleman in Polk County, proposed to sow ten acres rather than have the enterprise fail though he would have to rent land of his neighbors C Hoff
